

¡NO PASARAN! ZAPISI IZ SEMINARJA ANTIFA

22–31 Jernej A. Prodnik

Zaznamek k fašistoidnim praksam in vzpostavljanju novega fašizma

Avtor podaja teoretsko-analitičen premislek h konceptualizaciji fašizma, ki ga v zadnjem delu besedila aplicira na aktualne politično-ekonomske in politične razmere. Za razumevanje fašizma je treba tega izločiti iz zgodovinskega konteksta, čemur mora pri praktični analizi slediti vsakokratna in sočasna ponovna umeštitev v aktualne zgodovinske procese v družbi. Avtor predлага ločevanje med izgrajenim fašističnim redom in fašistoidnimi institucijami, procesi, praksami in diskurzi, ki nakazujejo diferenciacijo med makroravnijo in mikro-praksami ter politikami na ravni vsakdanjega življenja. Primeren družbeni kontekst je namreč predpogoj za gradnjo celovitejšega reda, saj daje podlago za pre mestitev oziroma prenos teh praks na širšo družbeno raven (na primer v razširjen skupek fašistoidnih aparativov in institucij na nacionalni ali nadnacionalni ravni, ki potencialno omogočajo fašistični red). S tem je redefinirana trdna in ostra binarna opozicija med fašističnimi in nefafašističnimi družbami, saj v različnih zgodovinskih trenutkih obstaja možnost gibanja od navidezno benignih fašistoidnih praks do protofašističnega konteksta in končno do celovito zgrajenega fašizma. Na ta način pa je mogoče fašizem opazovati in analizirati tudi kot gibanje in proces, ne le kot (zgrajeno) strukturo.

Ključne besede: fašizem, fašistoidne prakse, neoliberalizem, kapitalizem, post-demokracija.

Jernej Amon Prodnik, diplomirani politolog in doktorski študent. Mladi raziskovalec na Centru za raziskovanje družbenega komuniciranja in asistent na Katedri za medijske in komunikacijske študije, *Fakulteta za družbene vede, Univerza v Ljubljani.

(jernej.prodnik@gmail.com)*

34–53 Robert Bobnič, Andreja Vezovnik

Diskurz o islamu ali dispozitiv izjav in objekta Primer islamskega versko-kulturnega centra

Avtorja se ukvarjata z dispozitivom, ki ga tvori raven diskurzivnega in nediskurzivnega, izjave in objekti. Pri tem obravnavata predvsem Islamski versko-kulturni center (IVKC) kot dispozitiv, ki ga tvorijo medijsko posredovane izjave o džamiji in islamu in sama arhitekturna zasnova IVKC, predvidena za gradnjo na območju Mestne občine Ljubljana. Analiza se najprej osredini na raven medijsko posredovanih izjav, pri čemer se osredinja na dve obdobji – leti 2003 in 2008 ter deloma na leto 2009. Avtorja ugotavlja, da argumenti proti IVKC temeljijo na esencialističnih predpostavkah, ki se nadgrajujejo v polju fantazmatske grožnje islama, njegove mystifikacije in zavidanja užitka »drugega«. V drugem delu avtorja analizirata arhitekturne rešitve IVKC in po kažeta, kako se izjavljala raven dopolnjuje z materialno, skupaj pa tvorita normalizacijski dispozitiv. Namreč, kolikor imamo v izjavah prisotno mystifikacijo islama in videnja minareta kot zavojevalca teritorija, v tolikšni meri arhitektura IVKC to korigira, saj deluje demystificijsko in kastracijsko. Z uvajanjem transparentnosti, javno dostopnih površin, nižanjem minareta in uvajanjem »zahodnega sodobnega arhitekturnega sloga« se IVKC bolj kot islamski verski in kulturni objekt kaže kot institut njegove normalizacije.

Ključne besede: islam, islamski versko-kulturni center, izjava, arhitektura, dispozitiv, panoptikum, transparentnost, fantazma, mystifikacija, normalizacija.

Andreja Vezovnik, docentka na Fakulteti za družbene vede Univerze v Ljubljani. Že vrsto let deluje kot pedagoginja in raziskovalka na področju komunikologije in kulturnih študij. Je autorica monografije Diskurz. ter soautorica in urednica številnih monografij, raziskav in znanstvenih člankov. (andreja.vezovnik@fdv.uni-lj.si)

*Robert Bobnič, urednik Redakcije za kulturo in humanistične vede na Radiu Študent, odgovorni urednik časopisa Tribune v letih 2011 – 2012, publicist, ki deluje na področju slovenskih alternativnih medijev.
(robert.bobnic@radiostudent.si)*

54–60 Metka Mencin Čeplak

Nedolžnost znanstvenih »resnic«

Prispevek predstavlja primer »znanstvenega« utemeljevanja rasizma v psihologiji (t. i. primer Cattell). Avtorica opozarja, da znanstvenega rasizma v psihologiji ne bi smeli obravnavati kot eksces, temveč kot simptom: ni namreč omejen na nekaj psihologov, ki zagovarjajo evgeniko in evolucionizem. Tesno je povezan z (genetsko) reduktionistično konceptualizacijo individuumata in psiholoških razlik in z vlogo psiholoških vednosti v (bio)oblastnih razmerjih. Prispevek se konča z razmislkom o družbeni odgovornosti znanstvenikov in opozarja, da je treba znanstvene koncepte, metodologijo in ugotovitve obravnavati skupaj z njihovimi učinki.

Ključne besede: psihologija, razlike, rasizem, evgenika.

Metka Mencin Čeplak je doktorica družbenih ved in predavateljica na Fakulteti za družbene vede Univerze v Ljubljani. Osrednje področje njenega raziskovanja sta konstrukcija stigmatiziranih identitet in (re)produkacija razmerij moći, predvsem na področju izobraževanja. Je soavtorica več monografij o življenjskih orientacijah mladih in autorica člankov s področja diskriminacije, identitetnih politik in kritične psihologije. (metka.mencin-ceplak@guest.arnes.si)

64–73 Lana Zdravković

Možnost nemogočega ali: »Ne bomo plačali vaše krize!«

V izrazito antipoličnem času turbokapitalističnega načina oblikovanja družbe, v kateri je dobiček pomembnejši od ljudi – in živali, narave, družbenih odnosov ... pravzaprav česar koli – je postalо jasno, da je treba na novo premisliti koncepte demokracije, predstavnštva in iden-titarizma oziroma komunitarizma, ki se nam ponujajo kot samoumevni, nespremenljivi in dokončni in ki takšno katastrofalno stanje ne le kamuflirajo, temveč tudi aktivno podpirajo in reproducirajo. Ti koncepti, z vsemi svojimi atributi, v resnici producirajo, spodbujajo in ohranjajo strah pred enakostjo, ki ohromi vsako emancipacijsko akcijo. Tekst ponuja premislek o možnosti politike emancipacije in nujno odpira vprašanje drugačnega oblikovanja družbe, takšnega, ki bo temeljilo na solidarnosti, pravičnosti in enakosti kogar koli s komer koli in ne na dobičku, konkurenco in izrabljjanju. Ob tem premišljuje načine in možnosti upora ter zastavka oziroma protagonista tega upora in prostora tega upora kot ključno politično vprašanje današnjega časa.

Ključne besede: emancipacija, upor, Istost, možnost nemogočega.

Lana Zdravković je raziskovalka na Mirovnem inštitutu, politična aktivistka, publicistka in performerka ter producentka v Zavodu KITCH. Osrednje področje njenega zanimanja je politika emancipacije. (lana@kitch.si)

77–80 Gal Kirn

Fašizem v osrčju Nemčije: nova ideja Evrope

Avtor opiše diskurzivni premik v osrčju Evrope, kjer se neofašistična tendenca seli v mainstream politično polje, konkretna analiza se dotika zlasti Nemčije, kjer je predstavnik socialne demokracije Thillo Sarazzin s svojo »uspešnico« sprožil pravi stampedo in spodbudil vrsto sistematičnih kampanj proti muslimanom. Avtor sklene, da lahko danes, v luči neoliberalne restrukturacije krize govorimo o vzponu nacional-liberalizma.

Ključne besede: neofašizem, Nemčija, Sarazzin, antiislamizem, nova Evropa, nacional-liberalizem.

*Gal Kirn je doktor politične filozofije s področja francoske sodobne filozofije (predvsem Louis Althusser) ter zgodovine socialistične Jugoslavije. Je sourednik knjig *Encountering Althusser in Surfing the Black. Transformative Moments in Yugoslav

Cinema, ter urednik zbornika Post-Fordism and its Discontents. Bil je raziskovalec na JuE Akademiji (Maastricht) in ICI (Berlin), trenutno pa raziskuje na Wissenschaftszentrum Berlin für Sozialforschung. (galkirn@gmail.com)

84–90 Maca Jogan

Ob 70. obletnici ustanovitve OF slovenskega naroda

O in ob okrogli mizi »Mi pa nismo se uklonili njih podivjani sili...«

Leta 2011 je minilo 70 let od ustanovitve Osvobodilne fronte slovenskega naroda, ki je povezala večino prebivalstva v odporu zoper okupatorje med drugo svetovno vojno. Zlasti mladi (izobraževani po osamosvojitvi Slovenije) vedo zelo malo o fašizmu in nacizmu, o grozodestjih in nasilnem raznarodovanju s strani nemškega, italijanskega in madžarskega okupatorja ter o organiziranem delovanju OF v narodnoosvobodilnem boju. Zato je bila v okviru seminarja AntiFa na FDV organizirana okrogla miza »Mi pa nismo se uklonili njih podivjani sili...«. Njen namen je bil dopolnitev in oživitev poznavanja vloge Osvobodilne fronte ter presoja aktualnosti njenega programa z vidika takratnih in sedanjih razmer, tudi v primerjavi z odporniškimi gibanji v drugih evropskih državah, s čimer naj bi pri pomogla h krepiti občutljivosti za različne nove oblike izražanja fašističnih oziroma nacističnih teženj. V prispevku so osvetljene širše družbene okoliščine v zadnjih dveh desetletjih, za katere je značilno izničevanje pomena OF in posredno ali neposredno opravičevanje kolaboracije z okupatorjem. Razcepjenost zgodovinskega spomina se je izrazila tudi na okrogli mizi, pri čemer je prepričljivo prevladovala pozitivna ocena te enkratne zgodovinske organizacije.

Ključne besede: antifašizem, Osvobodilna fronta slovenskega naroda, razcepjen kolektivni zgodovinski spomin, opravičevanje kolaboracije.

Dr. Maca Jogan (1943), sociologinja, zaslužna profesorica Univerze v Ljubljani. Težišča njenega raziskovalnega in pedagoškega dela so (bila): razvoj socioloških teorij, zgodovina sociologije na Slovenskem in sociologija spolov. Doslej je izdala knjige: Sociologija reda (1978), Ženska, cerkev in družina (1986), Družbena konstrukcija hierarhije med spoloma (1990), Sodobne smeri v sociološki teoriji (1995) in Seksizem v usakdanjem življenju (2001). (maca.jogan@fdv.uni-lj.si)

92–99 Alen Toplišek

Pomen svobode izražanja v antagonistični družbi

Kritično razumevanje fašistoidnih diskurzov in jezikovna ranljivost nanje

Avtor se v članku loteva kompleksnega razmerja med jezikovno ranljivostjo, kot ga razume in pojmuje Judith Butler, in svobodo izražanja v antagonistični družbi, ki jo konceptualizira Chantal Mouffe. Namen članka je odmak od prevladajočega moralizirajočega diskurza, ki nekritično in politično nevtralno pristopa do pojava fašistoidnih in sovražnih diskurzivnih praks, ter podati drugačen pogled na paradoks med svobodo izražanja in regulacijo sovražnega govora. Najprej se osredinim na performativno delovanje besed, ki povzročijo bolečino, ter na vprašanje, kako to diskurzivno podreditev, ki jo poskuša vzpostaviti sovražni govoreči subjekt, spreobrniti na način, ki bo omogočil in dovoljeval kritično delovanje prizadetega subjekta. Poststrukturalističen pogled Butlerjeve na performativno delovanje diskurzov razkrije potencialna polja in priložnosti za kritično delovanje. Mouffina kritična analiza zmerne konsenzualne politike poudari zoženje političnega prostora za izražanje antagonističnih razmerij v družbi kot posledico prevladajoče postpolitične racionalnosti. Avtor na koncu zaključi, da je ustvarjanje odprtrega diskurzivnega prostora ključnega pomena za omogočanje kritičnega in subverzivnega spreobračanja sovražnih vsebin in stanja normalnosti.

Ključne besede: jezikovna ranljivost, svoboda izražanja, sovražni govor, konsenz, kritično delovanje.

Alen Toplišek je magistriral na University of Warwick, zdaj je doktorski študent politične teorije na Queen Mary, University of London. Enkrat mesečno piše za skupinski blog Refleksije, bolj občasno pa pripravi tudi kak intervju za Mladino. (alen.toplisek@gmail.com)

Nevidni delavci sveta kot avtonomni prostor organiziranja migrantskih delavcev

Prispevek na primeru položaja migrantskih delavcev v Sloveniji obravnava vprašanje izključuječe in hierarhizirajoče narave državljanstva, pri čemer na migrantske delavce ne gleda kot na pasivne objekte, ampak kot na subjekte, ki izvajajo obstoječe videne državljanstva in zahtevajo poglobitev in razširitev državljanskih pravic. Delovne migracije v Sloveniji so definirane na podlagi strateških dokumentov, ki urejajo t. i. sekundarni trg dela, hkrati pa ustvarjajo tisto, čemur Etienne Balibar pravi evropski rasizem. Ta je spodbudil migrantske delavce v Sloveniji, da so se organizirali v gibanje Nevidni delavci sveta (IWW), ki ga lahko razumemo kot upor proti obstoječemu vizumskemu režimu. Delavci migranti so s svojim bojem za razširitev polja svobode in destabilizacijo omejevalne migracijske politike postali pomemben del družbene realnosti. Besedilo med drugim obravnava tudi trajna in začasna orodja in metodologije, ki jih aktivisti gibanja, ki je postal pomemben avtonomni subjekt, katerega delovanja ne moremo prezreti, uporabljajo za organizacijo svojega boja.

Ključne besede: migracije, Nevidni delavci sveta, državlanske pravice, migrantski delavci.

Irina Vinčić je magistrica politologije in aktivistka gibanja Nevidni delavci sveta. Sodelovala je na različnih srečanjih in okroglih mizah, ki so jih organizirala lokalna in evropska gibanja, nevladne organizacije in raziskovalni kolektivi. Dela kot novinarka in prostovoljka v različnih nevladnih organizacijah. (irinavincic83@yahoo.com)

Nadaljevanje politike z drugimi sredstvi

Neofašistični graffiti in street art na Slovenskem

Članek analizira grafitarsko in street art produkcijo skrajnih desničarskih skupin na Slovenskem. Klasifikaciji glavnih tem in identificiraju skupin avtorjev sledi kritična analiza. Tovrstno produkcijo je mogoče razumeti vzdolž osi moderni–postmoderni fašizem. Moderni fašizem je neposreden, izključevalen, napadalen, postmoderni pa je še nevarnejši, saj je videti inkluziven, spravljiv, njegova dikcija deluje povezovalno. Njun končni cilj je seveda isti: hierarhična, avtoritarna, etnično in kulturno homogena in korporativno urejena družba. Sklepna ugotovitev je, da gre pri sovražnem govoru na stenah in v tistem v dominantnih institucijah za isti diskurz, pravzaprav za nadaljevanje iste politike z drugimi sredstvi. Nič, kar ni bilo izraženo z graffiti, ni bilo prej že z govornic dominantne politike. Na koncu članka so nanizani primeri »dekontaminacije« javnih površin, torej odstranjevanja ekstremističnih grafitov in street arta ali njihovega kreativnega subvertiranja.

Ključne besede: graffiti, street-art, neonacizem, šovinizem, urbane subkulture, antifašizem, Slovenija.

Mitja Velikonja je redni profesor za področje kulturologije na Oddelku za kulturologijo in predstojnik Centra za preučevanje kulture in religije na Fakulteti za družbene vede Univerze v Ljubljani. Je autor šestih knjig in soavtor še ene ter več deset poglavij in člankov v slovenskih in tujih zbornikih in družboslovnih revijah. Gostujuči profesor na Jagielonski univerzi v Krakovu (2002, 2003) in na Columbia University v New Yorku (2009) ter Fulbrightov gostujuči raziskovalec na Rosemont College v Philadelphiji (2004/2005) in na Nizozemskem inštitutu za družboslovje in humanistiko v Wassenaarju (NIAS, 2012). (mitja.velikonja@fdv.uni-lj.si)

Re/okupacija javnega prostora s sovraštvom in etničnim čiščenjem: pot v etnofašizem

Študija primera: Banja Luka

Prispevek analizira simboliko in pomen uličnih etno-religijskih grafitov, gesel in nalepk ter konzumacijo njihovih (pod-)pomenov v Banja Luki, nekoč vojaško-strateškem, danes pa političnem središču Republike Srbske (RS). Etno-religijski grafiti lahko povzročijo burne odzive ter z narativnimi in vizualnimi kodmi posredujejo dominantna obeležja, teme in mite – na našem primeru srbskega etničnega korpusa, ki se tudi v povojnem kontekstu s podudarjanjem etno-religijskih razlik, čaščenjem zločinov in vojaških zmag, zmerjanjem in nestrnostjo zlahka prelevi v sovražni govor. Taka agresivna vidnost »našega« potiska vse drugo in drugačno v nevidnost in podvrže avtocenzuri. Prispevek raziskuje značilnosti in kakovost povezave med produkcijo in konzumacijo etno-fašističnega sovražnega govora v grafitih ter sporočili etno-politične elite RS v javnem, regulativnem in medijskem prostoru. Kontekstualno interpretira diskurz grafitov z vidika državljanske vojne, etničnega čiščenja, napadov na in delitve Bosne in Hercegovine (BiH) ter delovanja političnih elit v Republiki Srbski. Tesna prepletjenost med diskurzom ulice in elite kaže, da je populistična legitimacija naštetega še vedno politični cilj, hkrati pa sproža pozabo multietnične preteklosti. Ponuja nepričljivo kulturno-politično in vojno-emancipatorno »kontinuiteto« in »normalnost« Republike Srbske ter razkriva pravi namen prelivanja krvi, v katerem je nastala.

Ključne besede: street art, javni prostor, etno-religijski grafiti, sovražni govor, nacionalizem, etnično čiščenje, etno-politična elita, etnofašizem, Banja Luka (BiH).

Srđan Šušnica je diplomirani pravnik, publicist in podiplomski študent kulturologije (smer kulturne in religijske študije) na Fakulteti za družbene vede Univerze v Ljubljani. Živi v Banja Luki in ustvarja v studiju za kulturni aktivizem s.a.j.t.u.m. (susnicas@teol.net)

Nadzorovanje in varčevanje
v socialnem varstvu

Razrast varčevalnih ukrepov kot posledica globalne krize finančnega kapitalizma je poleg privatizacije skupnega in razlaščanja ljudi pustvaril tudi nove mehanizme nadzorovanja in kaznovanja: dolg kot temeljno družbeno razmerje se je prenesel tudi na novo socialno zakonodajo in sistem socialnih transferjev, ki so postali orodje kriminaliziranja revčnine, poglabljanja razlik, socialne delavce (in sistem socialnega varstva sploh) pa pehajo čedalje globlje v nadzorništvo, moraliziranje in birokratizacijo. Obenem je nova socialna zakonodaja odraz pomanjkanja refleksije o reformi socialne države ter o potrebah in željah ljudi kot temeljnem vodilu oblikovanja programov socialnega varstva – namesto izboljšav pri zagotavljanju dostenjega življenja, ustvarjanju sistema novih socialnih pravic, ki jih zahtevajo nestalne oblike dela in življenja, so ljudje razosebljeni, ponizani, sami in nazadnje predmet vzpenjajočih se sovražnih govorov, šovinizmov in drugih (proto)fašističnih praks. Vpliv varčevalnih ukrepov na socialno varstvo ne zajema zgolj poslabšanja položaja ljudi ter njihove marginalizacije, temveč pomeni tudi korak nazaj za stroko socialnega dela, ki je ljudem čedalje bolj odtujeno in deluje kot podaljšana roka države ter ne nazadnje za skupnosti, kjer ljudje živijo, ki so vedno bolj izčrpane, izpraznjene, se atomizirajo in razdirajo vezi solidarnosti.

Ključne besede: dolg, razlaščanje socialnega varstva, mehanizmi nadzorovanja, modeliranje nove identitete, direktno socialno delo.

Asja Hrvatin je študentka Fakultete za socialno delo Univerze v Ljubljani. Je aktivistka gibanja 150, zanima jo področje duševnega zdravja v skupnosti in aktivistično delovanje znotraj autonomnih prostorov. (lovely.asja@gmail.com)

Esejistično o [ne]vsakdanjem poizkusu razumevanja nogometa

Avtor v uvodu predstavi razmišljanja o interpretacijah in (ne)razumevanju pomena nogometa, pri čemer poudarja zlasti neustreznost njegove kontekstualizacije. V nadaljevanju se ukvarja z dvema ključnima vprašanjema: s povezavo med nogometom in njegovo umestitvijo v širši družbenopolitični kontekst, pri čemer lahko nogomet zaradi njegovih globalnih razsežnosti obravnavamo kot enega pomembnejših delov globalnega kapitalističnega sistema. Nato poskuša zarisati (sicer tvegano) razmejitev med razumevanjem nogometa (najširši pomen) in nogometne igre (filozofija in kompleksnost igre). Avtor na podlagi dojemanja nogometne igre skozi medsebojne odnose, ki temeljijo na (relativno) enakovrednih vlogah sodelujočih posameznikov, predstavi idejo in potencialnost drugačnih oblik povezovanja in delovanja posameznikov, kolektivov in skupnosti.

Ključne besede: nogomet, šport, kapitalizem, emancipacija skupnosti.

Jure Lesjak je doktorski študent Humanistike in družboslovja na Fakulteti za družbene vede in aktiven nogometar NK Peca iz Črne na Koroškem. (lesjak.jure@gmail.com)

Proti generacizmu

Oris pojmovanja pravičnosti do prihodnjih generacij

Človeštvo je v globalni ekološki krizi v povezavi s podnebnimi spremembami, kar izvira ustaljene oblike političnega mišljenja in delovanja. Razpravo o pravičnosti apliciramo na prihodnost, pri čemer razumemo čas in naravno okolje kot skupno vez med ljudmi iz različnih časovnih obdobjij. Generacijo, ki živi danes, postavimo v odnos z generacijami, ki bodo živele v bližnji in bolj oddaljeni prihodnosti. Pojem »generacizem« nam omogoči pokazati neustreznost odnosa do prihodnjih generacij kot eno izmed oblik diskriminacije. Z uničevanjem globalnega okolja pripadnike prihodnjih generacij postavljamo v kri-vičen položaj na podlagi človekovega časa rojstva. Čas v tem smislu razumemo kot eno od arbitrarnih okoliščin, ki ne zadostuje za temelj razlikovanja med ljudmi. Zagovarjamо pojmovanje medgeneracijske pravičnosti, ki državi nalaga odgovornost za uveljavitev ukrepov za varstvo okolja, tako da zavaruje prihodnje generacije in odpravi generacizem iz naše družbe in gospodarstva. Vpeljemo t. i. zeleno državo, ki naj na podlagi pravičnosti do prihodnjih generacij uveljavi ukrepe za varstvo okolja.

Ključne besede: podnebne spremembe, generacizem, medgeneracijska pravičnost, zelena država, John Rawls.

Dejan Savić je doktorski študent filozofije na Filozofski fakulteti Univerze v Ljubljani. Raziskovalno se ukvarja s vprašanjem pravičnosti do prihodnjih generacij v povezavi z okoljevarstvom. Od leta 2010 je zaposlen v mednarodni okoljevarstveni organizaciji Greenpeace, kjer zastopa organizacijo v Sloveniji kot zastopnik za podnebno in energetsko politiko. (dejan.svet@gmail.com)

Okoljsko zanikanje

Čeprav so danes zanesljive in verodostojne informacije o negativnem vplivu človeka na stabilnost okolja le dva kliki oddaljene od nas, jih precejšnje število ljudi še zmerom vztrajno zanikuje. Zakaj? Raziskave kažejo, da je to, kar lahko imenujemo »okoljsko zanikanje«, posledica socialno-psihološkega spleta okoliščin: če bi odkrito priznali negativne posledice našega življenjskega sloga za okolje, bi morali spremeniti svoj način življenja, ki temelji na potrošništvu. Toda potrošništvo ni preprosto zgolj način izmenjanja dobrin, temveč okoli njega organiziramo svoj bivanjski smisel, kot to kažejo študije vedenja potrošnikov. Tako informacije o stanju okolja kot posledici človekovega delovanja zavrnemo ali se jim izogibamo, predvsem zato, ker bi njihovo sprejetje vodilo v konflikt med prepričanjem in delovanjem, okoli katerega organiziramo svoj bivanjski smisel. Tak zastavek ima širše družbeno-politične posledice. Najprej gre za vprašanje vzgoje in izobraževanja, ki mora upoštevati aracionalno naravo človeka, potem pa seveda tudi vprašanje možnosti in smeri družbenega delovanja.

Ključne besede: okoljsko zanikanje, okoljska filozofija, okoljska etika.

Tomaž Grušovnik je višji predavatelj na Fakulteti za humanistične študije in Pedagoški fakulteti Univerze na Primorskem. Bil je Fulbrightov štipendist na Univerzi Nove Mehike in gostujoči predavatelj na Centru za razvoj in okolje Univerze v Oslu. Lani je za svojo monografijo s področja okoljske etike z naslovom Odtenki zelene prejel nagrado Glasnik znanosti 2012. (tomaz.grusovnik@zrs.upr.si)

179–183 Nataša Sukič

Petindvajset let lezbične sekcije LL

Avtorica v prispevku oriše nastanek in zgodovino prve aktivistične lezbične skupine v vzhodni Evropi in nekdanji Jugoslaviji Škuc LL. Skupina s svojimi kulturno in politično angažiranimi projekti že petindvajset let napada diaspore lesbofobije in homofobije ter socializira družbo in ideale razsvetljenske, vključajoče, solidarne in egalitarne družbe. Avtorica v besedilu prepleta osebno aktivistično zgodovino in razvoj lezbičnega gibanja, od prve iniciativ v alternativnih osemdesetih letih prejšnjega stoletja v Ljubljani pa vse do danes.

176–178 Suzana Tratnik

AntiFa seminar v Lezbični četrti

Avtorica prepleta osebno aktivistično zgodovino in porajanje gejevske, feministične in lezbične iniciative v osemdesetih v Ljubljani. Tako kot so nanjo vplivale izkušnje mednarodnega lezbičnega gibanja in specifika lezbične situacije v okviru socialistične Jugoslavije, je tudi samo lezbično gibanje v Sloveniji pogosto nihalo med svojimi naravnimi zaveznički: feministkami in geji. Slednjič se je osamosvojilo v Lezbično sekcijo LL pri Društvu Škuc, v okviru Metelkove mesta pa vodi lezbični klub Monokel. Od nastanka lezbične skupine leta 1987 je ta v 25-ih letih razvila bogato infrastrukturo programov, dejavnosti in prostorov.

Ključne besede: alternativna scena, gejevsko gibanje, feministična inicijativa, mednarodna lezbična konferenca, lezbijke tretjega sveta, lezbična raznolikost in konflikti, lezbični zaveznički, lezbično gibanje v Sloveniji, Metelkova mesto.

Suzana Tratnik je magistrica antropologije spolov. Je pisateljica, prevajalka, publicistka in lezbična aktivistka, ki živi in dela v Ljubljani. (suzana.tratnik@mail.ljudmila.org)

Ključne besede: alternativna scena v osemdesetih, lezbično in gejevsko gibanje, festival Magnus, lezbofobija, homofobija, razsvetljenska družba, demokratizacija družbe, medijske podobe homoseksualnosti, festival Lezbična četrt.

Nataša Sukič je diplomirana inženirka elektrotehnike. Je pisateljica, publicistka, didzejka in lezbična aktivistka, ki živi in dela v Ljubljani. (sukicnataса@mail.ljudmila.org)

185–193 Franc Trček

Refleksiji ob »Gotof je!«

Prispevek združuje besedili, ki sta nastali v času tretje mariborske vstaje leta 2012. V prvem avtor pojasni imaginarnemu tujcu, zakaj se je v Marboru zgodil vstaja Gotof je!. Pri tem izhaja iz koncepta primarne akumulacije kapitala, ki je značilna za večino tranzicij, ter iz neuспешne reforme lokalne samouprave v Slovenije, katere posledice so lokalni šerifi. V drugem besedilu pa poskuša skozi analizo dogajanja v mestni politiki odgovoriti na vprašanje, kakšne volitve potrebuje Maribor.

Pri obeh besedilih gre za sprotno analizo, za teorijo v praksi. Ta je, ker jo praksa seveda prehiteva, šibka. Avtor v tem vidi njeno prednost, ne slabost, saj ne poslošuje tam, kjer še ni mogoče.

Ključne besede: šibka teorija, mariborska vstaja, primarna akumulacija kapitala, tranzicija, reforma lokalne samouprave, Gotof je!

Franc Trček je aktivni član gibanja Gotof si!, prebivalec Maribora in analitični sociolog, ki se ukvarja z družbeno-prostorskimi razvojnimi izziui in še zlasti z lokalnim in regionalnim razvojem, sociologijo arhitekture, sociologijo kibernetskega prostora in balkanski-mi študijami. (franc.trcek@guest.arnes.si)

194–197 Klemen Ploštajner

Vednost mora biti zavezana emancipaciji

Prispevek je krajši razmislek o mestu vednosti in vlogi intelektualcev v sodobni družbi znanja, ki vednost vse bolj podreja logiki blaga in produkcije. S tem so bili subjekti, za katere se predpostavlja, da vedo, in njihovi produkti (znanje) popolnoma potopljeni v mehanizme dominacije, ki se danes vse bolj izvaja v imenu racionalnih, tehničnih, objektivnih zakonov kapitalistične produkcije. Vstajniška gibanja po Sloveniji takšen status intelektualcev postavljajo na laž, saj sili levo intelektualno srenjo, da se ponovno prebudi in svoje znanje uporabi kot orodje emancipacije. Če je fašizem ponevrečena revolucija, je naloga vednosti in intelektualcev, da preprečijo pohod fašizma.

Ključne besede: protesti, družba znanja, vloga intelektualcev, produkcija.

Klemen Ploštajner je dodiplomski študent sociologije na Fakulteti za družbene vede Univerze v Ljubljani. Aktiven je v lokalnih gibanjih, med drugim je eden od soustvarjalcev spletnega mesta danesjenovdan.si. (plostajner.klemen@gmail.com)

199–210 Andrej Kurnik

Nova generacija vstaj – od Tunizije do Slovenije

Vstajo v Tuniziji, zasedbe trgov v Španiji, okupacijo Wall Streeta, globalno vstajo 15. oktobra 2011 in nedavne vstaje v Sloveniji lahko razumemo kot novo generacijo vstaj po izbruhu finančne krize. Vsem tem množičnim izrazom ogorčenja in iskanja resnične demokracije je skupno izražanje nepovratne krize neoliberalizma in predstavnike politike. Na osnovi opisa temeljnih značilnosti vstaj od Tunizije do Slovenije lahko opredelimo temeljne teoretske in praktične dileme nastajajoče nove političnosti: razmerja med socialno in politično dimenzijo vstaj ter med heterogenostjo in oblikami političnega organiziranja, vprašanja, kako se upor proti financializaciji izraža v nastajajočih oblikah neposredne demokracije, kako v nastajajočih gibanjih naslavljajo problem manjšin in neposredne demokracije ter kakšna teoretična praksa se lahko zoperstavi redčenju diskurza vstaj in omogoči svobodno produkcijo vstajniških izjav.

Ključne besede: vstaje, zasedbe, socialno in politično, neposredna demokracija, finančni kapitalizem, neoliberalizem.

Andrej Kurnik predava na Fakulteti za družbene vede v Ljubljani. Je nosilec predmetov Politična filozofija, Genealogije državljanstva, Nova političnost in globalna družbena gibanja, Biopolitika, Politika migracij. Kot aktivist se ukvarja z razvojem metodologij aktivističnega raziskovanja. (andrej.kurnik@fdv.uni-lj.si)

SUMMARIES ¡NO PASARAN!

22–31 Jernej A. Prodnik

A Note on Fascist Practices (and the Emergence of Neo-Fascism)

The author provides a theoretical analysis of the concept of fascism, which he then applies to the present political-economic and political circumstances. He proposes that to understand fascism it is important to separate it from the historical context, while it is at the same time of crucial importance to embed it into the current historical processes in the society. Only this kind of abstraction will enable us to consider fascism in a patently changed, but in many ways similar social context. Furthermore a differentiation is suggested between a completely formed fascist order on the one hand, and fascist institutions, processes, practices and discourses on the other.

This can provide a possible distinction between a macro-level perspective, which focuses on the wider social structures and systems, and micro-practices and micro-politics, which operate at the level of everyday activities. Such differentiation is important because a suitable social context is always a prerequisite for a totally integrated (fascist) order. It is always the social context that helps to transfer fascist micro-practices into the wider and often institutional social level (for example into a broadened complex of fascist apparatuses and institutions on the national or supra-national level that potentially enable the establishment of a fascist order). This also helps us to redefine the hard and sharp opposition between fascist and non-fascist societies: in different historical moments the movement from seemingly benign fascist practices toward a proto-fascist social context and finally to a totally constructed fascist system is always possible. Defined and rethought in this way, fascism can be observed and analyzed as a movement and a process, not only as a (fully constructed and stable, often de-contextualized) structure.

Keywords: fascism, neo-fascism, fascist practices, neoliberalism, capitalism, post-democracy.

Jernej Amon Prodnik is a Research fellow at the Social Communication Research Centre and Assistant to the Teaching Process at the Media Studies Department (Faculty of Social Sciences, University of Ljubljana, Slovenia). His principal research interests encompass the broad field of political economy of communication. (jernej.prodnik@gmail.com)

34–53 Robert Bobnič, Andreja Vezovnik

Discourse on Islam or Dispositif of Statements and Object

The case of the Islamic religious and cultural centre

The article deals with the notion of dispositif, which consists of discursive and non-discursive phenomena, of enunciations and objects. The article shows how the Islamic religious-cultural centre (IVKC) works as a dispositif, formed by enunciations mediated through the public media and the architectural design of the centre to be built in Ljubljana. The first part of the analysis focuses on the level of enunciations transmitted by the Slovenian public media in two time periods – i.e. 2003–2008, and partly in 2009. The authors claim that the arguments against IVKC are grounded in essentialist assumptions and upgraded by the phantasmatic threat of Islam as well as by its mystification. In the second part, the authors focus on the analysis of the architectural solutions of IVKC itself and show how the level of enunciations complements the material/architectural level. Indeed, as much as the enunciations mystify Islam and see the minaret as a conqueror of the Slovenian territory, to the same extent the architecture of IVKC demystifies and castrates. By introducing the notion of transparency and of public areas, by lowering the minaret and incorporating a »modern Western architectural style«, the authors claim that IVKC works less as an Islamic religious and cultural facility and more as a self-normalizing institution.

Keywords: Islam, Islamic religious and cultural centre, enunciations, architecture, dispositif, panopticon transparency, phantasmatic, mystification, normalization.

Dr. Andreja Vezovnik is an assistant professor at the Faculty of Social Sciences, University of Ljubljana. For a number of years she has been working as a teacher and researcher in the field of communication and cultural studies. She is author of a monograph called Discourse. and co-author or editor of numerous monographs, research and scientific articles. (andreja.vezounik@fdv.uni-lj.si)

Robert Bobnič is an editor on the Culture and Humanities editorial board at Radio Student Ljubljana. He was Editor-in-Chief for the Tribuna newspaper between 2011 and 2012. He also published in several other Slovenian media, especially in the field of alternative media. (robert.bobnic@radiostudent.si)

54–60 Metka Mencin Čeplak

The Innocence of Scientific »Truths«

The article presents a case of »scientific« argument supporting racism in psychology (»Cattell controversy«). The author argues that scientific racism in psychology should not be considered as an excess but rather as a symptom. It is not limited to a few cases of eugenicist and evolutionary psychologists; it is closely tied to the genetic reductionist concept of a person and of psychological differences, and to the role of psychological knowledge in (bio) power relations. It concludes with comments on the social responsibility of scientists and points out that scientific conclusions cannot be detached from their effects.

Keywords: psychology, differences, racism, eugenics.

Metka Mencin Čeplak (psychologist, PhD) lectures on Social and Political Psychology and Identities at the University of Ljubljana (Slovenia), Faculty for Social Sciences. Her main research interests are the construction of stigmatized identities and (re)production of power relations, particularly in the field of education. She has coauthored several monographs on values and life orientations of young people in Slovenia. She has also published on discrimination and identity politics, and on critical psychology. (metka.mencin-ceplak@guest.arnes.si)

64–73 Lana Zdravković

The Possibility of the Impossible or »We will not Pay for your Crisis!«

In the extremely antipolitical time of the turbo-capitalistic way of shaping society, which considers that profit is more important than people – and animals, nature, social relations ... actually anything – it became obvious that rethinking new concepts of democracy, representation and identitarianism or communitarism, which are presented to us as self-evident, unchangeable/ eternal and final and which not only camouflage that catastrophic situation but also actively support and reproduce it – is needed. What that concept with all its attributes really produces, encourages and preserves is the fear of equality, which paralyses each emancipatory action. The article aims to rethink the possibility of emancipatory politics and consequently to open up the question of alternative ways of shaping society, to be based on solidarity, justice and equality of everyone, and not based on profit, competition and exploitation. To achieve that, the text examines the ways and possibilities of resistance and considers the aims of the protagonists and the places of this resistance as key political issues of our time.

Keywords: emancipation, resistance, Sameness, possibility of impossible.

Lana Zdravković is researcher at the Peace Institute, political activist, publicist and performer and producer at the KITCH Institute. Her main field of interest is the politics of emancipation. (lana@kitch.si)

77–80 Gal Kirn

Fascism in the Core of Germany: The New Idea of Europe

The author diagnoses the discursive shift in the core of Europe, where the neofascist tendency is not only a matter of the margins. It is not restricted to the cliché of the unemployed working class poor from Eastern Germany, but rather it has migrated into the main political parties. As a symptomatic example of this neofascist turn the author analyzes the bestseller Germany Is Abolishing Itself, the literary and quasi-scientific achievement from Thillo Sarazzin, once a member of the German Federal Bank and still a member of Social Democrats. This recent best-seller made politically incorrect vocabulary on Muslims a legitimate scientific argument. In the light of contemporary neoliberal restructuring of the economic crisis, and the role Germany plays within it, one could start speaking about the rise of »nationalliberalism«.

Keywords: neofascism in Germany, anti-Islam, new Europe, Sarazzin, nationalliberalism.

Gal Kirn holds a PhD in political philosophy dealing with the work of Louis Althusser and history of socialist Yugoslavia. He is a co-editor of Encountering Althusser (Bloomsbury, 2013) and Surfing the Black. Transformative Moments in Yugoslav Cinema (JuE, 2012), and an editor of Post-Fordism and its Discontents (JuE, 2010). He was a research fellow at the JuE Akademie (Maastricht) and ICI (Berlin), and at the moment he is conducting research at Wissenschaftszentrum Berlin für Sozialforschung. (galkirn@gmail.com)

84–90 Maca Jogan

The 70th Anniversary of the Foundation of the Liberation Front of the Slovenian Nation

About and on the Round Table »But we didn't submit to their wild power...«

In 2011 over 70 years had passed since the foundation of the Liberation Front of the Slovenian Nation which linked the majority of the Slovenian people in defence against the military occupation during WWII. At present, knowledge about fascism and Nazism, about the cruelties and violent ethnocide carried out by German, Italian and Hungarian occupation troops is very limited, particularly among youth educated after the changes in the political system in Slovenia and the establishment of an independent state (1991). Scant and superficial is also their knowledge on the organized activity of the Liberation Front in the national liberation fight. For this reason the round table »We didn't submit to their wild power...« was organised as part of the Anti-Fa seminar at the Faculty of Social Sciences (1 March 2011). Its aim was to renew interest in and expand public awareness of the LF, and also to evaluate its programme according to past and present social conditions (including a comparison with resistance movements in other European countries). The discussion was intended to contribute to raising sensitivity to various new forms of fascist or Nazi tendencies. This article outlines the broad circumstances during the last two decades, characterized by the denial and disregard of the LF's importance on one hand and by the direct or indirect legitimization of collaboration with the occupation forces on the other. This cleavage of the historic memory was also raised in the discussions of the round table. The LF was seen as a unique historic organization and the final assessment of its work was predominantly positive.

Keywords: Anti-fascism, Liberation Front of the Slovenian Nation, split collective historic memory, legitimization of collaboration.

Maca Jogan (1943) is a professor emeritus at the University of Ljubljana, Slovenia. Her main research is in the fields of the history of sociological theory and of gender sociology. She is author of (in Slovene): Sociology of Order (1978), Women and Discrimination (1986), Women, Church and Family (1986), Social Construction of Gender Hierarchy (1990), Contemporary Streams in Sociological Theory (1995), Sexism in Everyday Life (2001). (maca.jogan@fdv.uni-lj.si)

92–99 Alen Toplišek

The Significance of Freedom of Expression in an Antagonistic Society

Critical Understanding of Fascist Discourses and Linguistic Vulnerability

In this article I will address the complex relations between linguistic vulnerability as it is understood and construed by Judith Butler, and the freedom of expression in an antagonistic society that was conceptualized by Chantal Mouffe. The purpose of this article is to move away from the dominant moralizing discourse which tackles the emergence of fascistic and hateful discursive practices uncritically and in a politically neutral manner, and then offer an alternative view of the paradox between the freedom of expression and the regulation of hate speech. First, I concentrate on the performative functioning of words that injure and the question of how to subvert this discursive subjection that the hate speaker is seeking to constitute in a way that will enable the critical agency of the one injured. Butler's post-structuralist view on the performance of discursive acts reveals potential sites and possibilities for critical agency. With her critical analysis of moderate consensus politics, Mouffe identifies the narrowing of the political space for articulation of antagonistic relations in society as the effect of the dominant post-political rationality. At the end I come to the conclusion that generating open discursive spaces is of crucial importance for the facilitation of critical subversion of hateful contents and restoring a state of normality.

Keywords: linguistic vulnerability, freedom of expression, hate speech, consensus, critical agency.

Alen Toplišek has an LLM in International Development Law and Human Rights from the University of Warwick and now he is doing a PhD in political theory at Queen Mary College, University of London. Every month, he writes for a collaborative blog Refleksije, and from time to time he also interviews critical thinkers for Mladina magazine. (alen.toplisiek@gmail.com)

102–109 Irina Vinčić

Invisible Workers of the World as an Autonomous Space of Migrant Workers

The case of migrant workers in Slovenia is the basis for this article which deals with the question of exclusivity and the hierarchical nature of citizenship. Migrant workers are not seen as passive objects, but as entities that challenge the existing definition of citizenship and demand the expansion of civil rights. Labour migration in Slovenia is defined on the basis of strategic documents governing the so-called secondary labor market, at the same time creating what Etienne Balibar calls real European racism. This has galvanized migrant workers in Slovenia to organize in a movement called Invisible Workers of the World (IWW), which can be seen as a revolt against the current visa regime. With their struggle to expand freedoms and destabilize restrictive migration policies, migrant workers have become an important part of social reality. This article also deals with both the permanent and temporary tools and the methodologies being used by activists of the movement to organize their struggle. The IWW movement itself has become an important autonomous entity whose activity cannot be ignored.

Keywords: migration, Invisible Workers of the World, citizenship rights, migrant workers.

Irina Vinčić holds a Master of Political Science and is a activist of the Invisible Workers of the World movement. She has participated in various meetings and round tables, which were organized by the local and the European movements, non-governmental organizations and research collectives. She works as a journalist and as a volunteer at various non-governmental organizations. (irinavincic83@yahoo.com)

116–126 Mitja Velikonja

The Continuation of Politics by Other Means

Neo-Fascist Graffiti and Street Art in Slovenia

This article analyses graffiti and street-art production by extreme right-wing groups in Slovenia. Classification of the main topics and identification of groups of authors is followed by a critical analysis. This production can be understood along the line of modern–postmodern fascism. Modern fascism is direct, exclusive, aggressive, while the postmodern one is even more dangerous, because it looks inclusive, conciliatory, and its language seems integrative. However, their final goal is identical: hierarchical, authoritarian, ethnically and culturally homogeneous and corporative society. The basic finding of the study is that hate-speech on the walls and the policies of dominant institutions are basically the same, so we can speak about the continuation of the same politics by other means. Everything that is written in the graffiti has already been said from the pulpits of dominant politics. Finally, examples of »decontamination« of public spaces are listed, i.e. removal of extremist graffiti and street art or their creative subversion.

Keywords: graffiti, street art, neonazism, chauvinism, urban subcultures, anti-fascism, Slovenia.

Mitja Velikonja is full professor of Cultural Studies and head of the Centre for Cultural and Religious Studies at the Faculty of Social Sciences, University of Ljubljana. He is the author of six monographs and co-author of another one, and has contributed numerous chapters and articles to Slovenian and international anthologies and social science journals. He was visiting professor at Jagiellonian University in Krakow (2002, 2003) and at Columbia University in New York (2009); he was a Fulbright visiting researcher at Rosemont College in Philadelphia (2004/2005) and a research fellow at the Netherlands Institute for Advanced Study in the Humanities and Social Sciences in Wassenaar (2012). (mitja.velikonja@fdv.uni-lj.si)

127–140 Srdan Šušnica

Reoccupying Public Space by Hatred and Ethnic Cleansing

Case study: Banja Luka

The article analyses the symbolism and the meaning of ethno-religious graffiti, slogans and stickers especially as they are used on the streets of Banja Luka. The city used to be a strategic centre for armed forces but is today the political centre of Republika Srpska (RS), supposedly a legitimate military conquest of the people of Serbia. Responses in ethno-religious graffiti can be turbulent. In our case, narrative and visual codes transmit dominant messages and myths of the Serbian ethno-cultural corpus which can easily become hate speech, especially in the post-war context, in which ethno-religious differences are being brought to the fore, war crimes and armed victories are being exalted and expressions of non-tolerance are common. This aggressive visibility of »ours« pushes all the rest and anyone who is different into invisibility and self-censoring. The article researches characteristics and the quality of connection between the production and the results of ethno-fascistic speech in graffiti and in the messages of the RS ethno-political elites in public forums, regulations and media spaces. A contextual interpretation of a graffiti discourse, which was formed in the midst of civil war, ethnic cleansing, attacks on and the separation of Bosnia and Herzegovina and activities of political elites in RS, is offered. The intimate connection between street discourse and that of political elites shows that a populist legitimization of the activities of the RS is still a political goal that also triggers the process of forgetting the region's multi-ethnic past. In Banja Luka, this process offers a »national and spiritual« legitimacy for the existence of RS and seeks to make the city a part of the Serbian ethnic community. It offers an unconvincing cultural-political and war-emancipatory »continuity« and »normality« for the RS and covers up its real intention of bloodshed from which it had emerged. In this it is consistent with Eco's notion of Ur-Fascism.

Keywords: street art, public space, ethno-religious graffiti, hate speech, nationalism, ethnic cleansing, ethno-political elite, ethno-fascism, Banja Luka (BiH).

Srdan Šušnica holds a Diploma in Law and is a M. A. student of cultural and religious studies in the Faculty of Social Sciences, University of Ljubljana. He regularly publishes articles. Living in Banja Luka, he is a creative part of the studio for cultural activism s.a.j.t.u.m. (susnicas@teol.net)

143–146 Asja Hrvatin

Austerity, Discipline and Social Security

One of the manifestations of the global crisis of financial capitalism and the policies arising from it was the imposition of austerity measures, which not only resulted in privatization of the commons and general expropriation of the people, but also managed to introduce new mechanisms of discipline and punishment. Debt, being the fundament of relations in society, forced itself into the system of social security: new legislation, regulating welfare benefits, has now shifted to a method for the criminalization of poverty, deepening class differences and transforming social workers (and the system of social security as a whole) into a moralizing, bureaucratic machine for disciplining the population. The new legislation also shows a lack of reflection on the changes that need to be made to the welfare state in order to create social services that meet the needs and desires of individuals. Instead of improvements that provide decent living conditions and a new system of social rights (to deal with the problems resulting from precarious working conditions), people are faced with depersonalization, humiliation and increased hate speech and other fascist practices.

The effect of austerity measures on the social security system does not end with the devastation of service users' lives and their communities, which are slowly becoming exhausted, individualized and devoid of solidarity. It also means a big step backwards for the core ethics and principles of social work. Social workers are increasingly alienated from their clients and the communities they live in. They function more in the service of the government and its policies rather than as advocates of people's rights..

Keywords: debt, expropriation of the system of social security, mechanisms of discipline, transformations of identity, direct social work.

Asja Hrvatin is a student of social work at the University of Ljubljana. She was an activist of the 150 movement. Her interests lie mainly in community mental health care and working within activist collectives of different autonomous spaces. (lovely.asja@gmail.com)

148–153 Jure Lesjak

Discussing an (un)Usual Approach to Comprehending Football

In the introduction the author presents some reflections, interpretations and misconceptions about football. The main emphasis is on the irrelevant contextualization(s). Two key questions are highlighted: on the one hand, the connection between football and its installation into the vast social and political context – because of its global dimensions football can be viewed as an important structural component in the global capitalist system. On the other hand, the article tries to draw the (perilous) distinction between the understanding of »football« (in its broadest definition) and »the game of football« (concerning its philosophy and complexity). From that point of view the author focuses on a certain aspect in the game of football where relations between players are based on relatively equal roles – this concept is the origin of representing the idea and potential of different forms of association and integration between individuals, collectives and communities.

Keywords: football, sport, capitalism, emancipation, communities.

Jure Lesjak is a doctoral student at the Faculty of Social Sciences in Ljubljana and an active football player at FC Peca from Črna na Koroškem. (lesjak.jure@gmail.com)

159–167 Dejan Savić

Against Generationism

A Conceptual Outline of Justice for Future Generations

Humanity faces a global ecological crisis in the context of climate change which challenges established forms of political thought and action. The discussion of justice is applied to the future, where we understand time and the natural environment as a common bond between people from different periods. We put today's generation in a relationship with the generations in the near and more distant future. The term »genericism«, describing the current way of thinking as another form of discrimination, allows us to show the inadequacy of our attitudes towards future generations. By destroying the global environment, we create injustice towards future generations on the basis of the time of peoples' birth. In this context, time is understood as an arbitrary circumstance, which does not suffice as a basis for discriminating between people. We defend the concept of intergenerational justice that gives the state the responsibility for implementing environmental protection measures in order to protect future generations and eliminate generacism from our society and economy. We propose the so-called green state, which bases environmental protection measures on fairness to future generations.

Keywords: climate change, generacism, intergenerational justice, green state, John Rawls.

Dejan Savić is a PhD student in philosophy at the Faculty of Arts of the University of Ljubljana. His research covers the field of justice to future generations in regards to environmental protection. From 2010 he has been working at the international environmental organization Greenpeace as a climate and energy campaigner in Slovenia. (dejan.svet@gmail.com)

168–174 Tomaž Grušovnik

Environmental Denial

Even though today reliable information about the negative impact of humans on the environment is only two clicks away, a considerable number of people still deny it. Why? Research shows that what we might call 'environmental denial' is a consequence of specific social and psychological factors: if we were to admit the negative impact of our lifestyles on the environment, we would have to change our way of life founded on consumerism. However, consumerism is not simply a way of exchanging goods; it is also something around which we organize the meaning of our lives, as consumer research clearly shows. Therefore we deny the information on the negative impact of human activity on the environment because admitting it would lead to a conflict between cognition (attitudes, beliefs) and actions (behaviour) around which we organize the meaning of our lives. Such an exposition points to wider sociopolitical effects. Firstly, it raises questions about education that have to take into account the non-rational nature of human beings, and secondly it raises questions about the directions and possible outcomes of social action.

Keywords: environmental denial, environmental philosophy, environmental ethics.

*Tomaž Grušovnik is a senior lecturer at the University of Primorska where he teaches in the Faculty of Humanities and Faculty of Education. He was a Fulbright student at the University of New Mexico and guest lecturer at the Centre for Development and the Environment, University of Oslo. He was awarded the Herald of science 2012 prize for his monograph on environmental ethics Shades of Green (Odtenki zelene). (tomaz.grusovnik@zrs.upr.si)*

176–178 Suzana Tratnik

AntiFa Seminar in the Lesbian Quarter

The author interlaces a personal activist history and the rise of gay, feminist and finally lesbian initiatives in the 80s in Ljubljana. Influenced by the experiences of the international lesbian movement and the particular lesbian situation in the context of socialist Yugoslavia, the Slovenian lesbian movement itself often wavered between its natural allies: feminists and gays. Finally it attained independence as a Lesbian group LL within the ŠKUC Association, and the group now runs the lesbian Monokel club in the Metelkova squat. Since its beginning in 1987, it has developed a rich infrastructure of programs, activities and spaces.

Keywords: alternative scene, gay movement, feminist initiative, international lesbian conference, 3rd world lesbians, lesbian diversity and conflicts, lesbian allies, lesbian movement in Slovenia, Metelkova squat.

Suzana Tratnik has obtained MA in Gender Anthropology. She is a fiction writer, translator, publicist and lesbian activist who lives and works in Ljubljana. (suzana.tratnik@mail.ljudmila.org)

179–183 Nataša Sukič

25 Years of the Lesbian Section LL

Author describes the beginnings and the history of ŠKUC LL, the first activist lesbian group in Eastern Europe and former Yugoslavia. Through projects within the cultural and political domains the group has been fighting against lesbophobia and homophobia for the last 25 years.

The group tries to create an inclusive, united and egalitarian society of enlightenment ideals. The author mixes personal activist history with a development of a lesbian movement from the first initiative in the alternative society of the 80s in Ljubljana to the situation today.

Keywords: alternative scene in the 80s, lesbian and gay movement, Magnus festival, lesbophobia, homophobia, society of enlightenment, democratization of society, homosexuality in the media, the Lezbična četr festival.

Nataša Sukič holds a Diploma and is a engineer in Electrotechnics. She is a writer, DJ and lesbian activist. (sukicnataša@mail.ljudmila.org)

185–193 Franc Trček

Reflection on »Gotof je!«

This article combines two texts, which were written at the time of the third Maribor uprising in 2012. The first explains to an imaginary foreigner, why Gotof je! happened. In doing so, I start from the concept of primary accumulation of capital, which is typical for most of the transitions in Eastern European countries, and the failure of reform of local government in Slovenia, the consequence of which is local sheriffs. The second text is trying – through the analysis of actual political events in the city and municipality – to answer the question of what kind of election we need in Maribor. Both texts are a real-time analysis of the theory in practice. I call such attempts »weak theory« because the practice course ahead. I see this as a big advantage of weak theory, not as a weakness, because it not generalises where it is not possible.

Keywords: weak theory, Maribor uprising, primary accumulation of capital, transition, reform of local self-government, Gotof je!

Franc Trček is an active member of the Gotof si! movement. He is a resident of Maribor and analytical sociologist. He studies socio-spatial developmental challenges and in particular local and regional development, the sociology of architecture, cybersociology and Balkan studies. (franc.trcek@guest.arnes.si)

194–197 Klemen Ploštajner

Knowledge Must be Committed to Emancipation

The article considers the place of knowledge and the role of intellectuals in contemporary knowledge society in which knowledge is more and more subsumed under the logic of production and commodities. Subjects are supposed to know and their products (knowledge) are thus completely immersed in mechanisms of domination, which is practised more and more in the name of rational, technical, objective laws of capitalist production. The protest movement in Slovenia rejects the traditional status of intellectuals, forcing them to wake up and start using their knowledge as a tool of emancipation. If fascism represents a failure of revolution to achieve emancipation, then intellectuals have the task to prevent the march of fascism.

Keywords: protests, knowledge society, role of intellectuals, production.

Klemen Ploštajner is an undergraduate student of Sociology in the Faculty of Social Science, University of Ljubljana. He is active in various local social movements. He is also one of the co-creators of danesjenovdan.si portal. (plostajner.klemen@gmail.com)

199–210 Andrej Kurnik

A New Generation of Uprisings – from Tunisia to Slovenia

The uprising in Tunisia, the occupation of public squares in Spain, the Occupy Wall Street movement, the global uprising on 15 October 2011 and the recent widespread demonstrations in Slovenia can be understood as the new generation of uprisings following the eruption of financial crisis. Those multitudinal expressions of indignation and quests for real democracy are expressions of the irreversible crisis of neoliberalism and representative democracy. From an examination of the defining traits of uprisings from Tunisia to Slovenia, one can define basic theoretical and practical dilemmas in the new ways of doing political encounters. These include the relationship between the social and political dimensions of uprisings, the relationship between heterogeneity and forms of political organization, how resistance against financialization prefigures emerging forms of direct democracy, how emerging movements address the issue of direct democracy and minority rights, and what theoretical practices can prevent the attenuation of the discourse of uprisings and enable the free production of enunciations.

Keywords: uprisings, occupations, social and political, direct democracy, financial capitalism, neoliberalism.

Andrej Kurnik is a lecturer at the Faculty of Social Sciences. He lectures in Political Philosophy, Genealogies of Citizenship, New Political Character and Global Movement, Biopolitics, and Politics of Migration. As an activist he works on developing methodologies of militant research. (andrej.kurnik@fdv.uni-lj.si)